Announcement

¶ Patriotic societies are continuing their activities in marking historic sites in the State of Washington. The latest achievement in this line is recorded in this issue of the Quarterly.

¶ It will be interesting to historians in the Pacific Northwest to know that Dr. Henry Suzzallo, the new President of the University of Washington, is deeply interested in the work of preserving records of local history.

¶ This issue completes Volume VI of the Washington Historical Quarterly. For that reason it carries a binder's title page and an index.

¶ The Division of Northwest Research, Department of History, University of Washington, is preparing for publication an extensive book on the origin of geographical names in Washington.
